Proud sponsors of Broadway Arts Festival

FOREWORD

Broadway's close connection with the arts stretches back over 130 years to the famous Broadway Colony of artists - the group of painters, musicians and writers, most notably John Singer Sargent - who came to the village and found inspiration for their creativity. Broadway remains a destination for art-lovers and an inspiration for artists to this day

The biennial Broadway Arts Festival, founded in 2010, now attracts attendance and participation from far and wide. As it has grown, so has the task of organising it, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank Karen Bloch and her management committee for all their hard work and skill in producing this year's exciting programme. I would also like to thank our sponsors, benefactors and friends for their generosity.

The Festival also looks to the future and as a registered charity makes financial grants to young arts students from the local area. They, in turn, have been generous in their support of the Festival. Hopefully, they will also play their part in carrying forward Broadway's rich artistic heritage and its place as a vibrant centre for the creative arts.

WELCOME

The biennial Broadway Arts Festival is proud to present its fifth and what promises to be its best programme yet. Eminent speakers include Andrew Graham-Dixon, Sir Roy Strong, John Julius Norwich, Tristram Hunt and Lachlan Goudie. Music lovers will be entertained by the popular Trio Severn and international jazz star Ben Powell. There are two high quality art exhibitions: the premiere of a special World War One Art Exhibition and the increasingly prestigious Open Art Competition. Theatre lovers will enjoy the productions of Pride & Prejudice, Romeo & Juliet and The Midnight Gang. New this vear is Artbeat Broadway - a focus on crafts where you can watch internationally renowned artists demonstrate their skills.

But increasingly the Broadway Arts Festival has developed into an opportunity for wider participation and creativity. Building on the success of the previous programme of art and craft workshops, we are running an even larger number of these events in an extensive range of media aimed at every age and ability. We are repeating the hugely popular choral workshop and performance, this time featuring Mozart's Requiem. An extensive free schools programme provides the opportunity for participation and creativity for Broadway's children. The Great Broadway Paint-Off is a new event for artists of all ages to paint with professional artists.

Whether you come to the Festival to watch and listen or to participate, we are sure that you will be inspired and stimulated. You will certainly be most welcome!

Tuesday — Sunday 10am — 5pm

A permanent exhibition about the world-famous Broadway Colony, of renowned artists, writers, musicians and actors, most notably John Singer Sargent, has now been permanently installed in a dedicated room of the Broadway Museum and Art Gallery on behalf of the Broadway Arts Festival.

This important piece of Broadway heritage recounts the interestingly interwoven lives of those who came to live, work and play together here in the late 19th and early 20th century. Written and curated by Karen Bloch, this fascinating story is told in a beautifully illustrated and highly informative display.

Art of The Great War 1914 - 1918

Born in 1932, John Noott well remembers talk of the Great War as the country was busy preparing itself for the Second World War. These were formative events in a young life and proved to be foundational for a later passion that has seen John gather together an important collection of war art during his 50 years as an art dealer.

Showing the humour as well as the horror, on the front line and the home front, this exhibition is a curated mix of original art and prints, by both official war artists and amateurs. In a time when the last surviving veterans are no longer with us, it offers us a fascinating first-hand insight into one of the most significant events in modern world history.

NEW for 2018!

Experimental Watercolour: Demonstration with Ann Blockley

Ann's demonstration will be based on the projects described in her new book 'Ann Blockley's Watercolour Workshop' published by Pavilion books on March 1 2018. She will be creating a new interpretation of one of the pictures in the book using a combination of different water-based mediums to demonstrate ways of creating loose, expressive marks and textures with a range of unusual techniques.

'Going Wild in Watercolour!': Demonstration with Jake Winkle

Jake paints watercolour with passion and expression, capturing the essence of his subject with fabulous colour and dynamic brush strokes. He practises watercolour at its most uncluttered and with apparent simplicity brings his paintings to life... each picture telling a story! Come and be lured into the wonderful opportunities of this exquisite medium.

Colour and Light: Demonstration with Tony Allain

"I am not interested in pure representation; my work is about responses to the moods and atmospheres generated by landscape, still life or interior".

In this demonstration Tony will take an everyday scene and, through a subtle approach and through focusing on light, colour and tone, will give the motif an elevated atmosphere. "My subjects are often oriented around the mood of the sea, skies, harbours, ships and figures; I am constantly absorbing everything that is around me".

Local relationship banking

Handelsbanken Cheltenham is proud to support the Broadway Arts festival, a local celebration that has been an annual event since 2010.

Relationships count

Handelsbanken has a different perspective from many other banks. We are driven only by our customers, designing tailored solutions to suit their demands. Because we are not target driven, we take a 'long-term view' investing time to get to know our customers, their needs and ambitions. That's why, for nine years running, Handelsbanken has come top in an independent satisfaction survey for UK personal and business banking customers', (EPSI Rating, October 2017).

"The branch is the bank"

Handelsbanken's decentralised model is core to its success, with each branch operating as a small business. Here at Handelsbanken Cheltenham, our customers benefit from only dealing with people they know: experienced bankers who understand the local market, and from swift, clear decisions made within the branch.
